OUT of AFRICA

— Park & Safari® —

The History of...

The humble beginning.

In 1988, Dean and Prayeri Harrison founded Out of Africa Wildlife Park, a preserve born from their single-minded objective of bringing God, people, and animals together in a natural setting. Married in 1980, neither of them could predict what adventures would unfold when they first met. Dean began learning to interpret animal behavior from his reptile friends during his childhood, while Prayeri shared a fascination with an assortment of cat, dog, and bird pets that she grew up with. This deep-rooted fascination of the animal world was the underpinning of what would one day become a 104-acre wildlife preserve featuring hundreds of exotic animals, a location filled with serenity and adventure.

It all began in Southern California when Dean and Prayeri welcomed a baby African leopard named Saja into their hearts and home, sharing everything from their bed, their food, and their life. In return, this wild and survival-oriented creature provided them the priceless experience of understanding life from a wild animal's point of view, and in so doing, created a companionship between human and animal.

Saja revealed what was to become their calling, that of illuminating for others the genuine connectedness between human and animal spirituality. As Saja grew, so did her need for companionship with other similar creatures, thus directing the Harrisons to gradually add other big, exotic cats to their family, including a tiger, a cougar, and a lion, all of whom were raised from cubs.

This necessitated a move to an adequate, fully integrated, human/animal abode where the animals could freely roam their own outdoor habitats, or chose to spend time with Dean and Prayeri inside their home. It was that decision that led them to Oregon.

To some, co-existing with the wildest of large land predators may seem foolish, yet it was necessary to do things in a non-traditional, non-cultured way, to earnestly look from the predator's eyes as they learned from them and fulfilled their needs. Dean and Prayeri refrained from standard procedures used in circuses or zoos, equally out of respect and love for the animals as their research goals. There would be no whip or chair routine, and the boredom of a zoo setting had to be replaced with purpose and relationships. The lessons learned, and the satisfaction received, have been more than worth it, as evidenced in the spirit of Out of Africa Wildlife Park today.

During this time the Harrisons became known for their beautiful animals and meticulous care of them. They opened their home and facility to the public, calling it Tigerville, USA. But, the Harrisons wanted to live in Arizona so they eventually moved to the Phoenix area where the original Out of Africa Wildlife Park was formed in Fountain Hills, AZ in 1988. After 16 years, the park was moved 90 miles north to a much larger property in the high desert foothills of the Mingus Mountains in Camp Verde, AZ. As the park grew from 16 acres to 104, so did the diversity and number of its residents, as well as the size of the habitats so crucial to their stimulation and enrichment. The park opened to the public in May 2005. Visitors and the animals alike enjoy the park's look and feel of Africa, as the vegetation and landscape bear a striking resemblance to many parts of Africa.

Dean and Prayeri's knowledge and understanding of animal behavior and instinct has intensified with each new, "global" resident. They've become experienced in preventive veterinary care, learning best practices in contemporary allopathic thinking as well as in the more esoteric options available in holistic medicine. They also have extensive experience in evaluating and collaborating on medical treatment and assisting at surgeries for injuries and illness.

Dean and Prayeri have traveled to Africa many times on photo safari tours. This experience has imbued in them an overwhelming physical and spiritual sense of "home" and of being one with all of life. These trips have helped them construct authentic habitats, enabling visitors to the park to get a sense of an authentic Africa. Providing others with the opportunity to awaken to this concept has become their greatest pleasure.

Every day this concept of oneness is illustrated with unsurpassed majesty.

It's been over 30 years since their grand experiment began. The enthusiasm Dean and Prayeri have displayed for over three decades now continues to this very day. They have made it their life's calling to share what they have learned by demonstrating these unique relationships to the public, while playing a role in the preservation of exotic animals, many of which are threatened today.

Today, the Harrisons live on the grounds of the park year round, so they can be close to the animals in their charge that they love. Out of Africa Wildlife Park has gained great distinction as a highly respected wildlife park for its unique approach allowing its residents to thrive and flourish because of spacious habitats, preservation and rehabilitation efforts, education, research, and interaction.

From the beginning Dean and Prayeri wanted to know the big cats on a personal basis. They desired harmony and peace between the animals and themselves, and they found it. Ever since then, their lives have been dedicated to the hope that you will find it as well.

The Park opened its current (and only) Camp Verde, AZ, location in May 2005. Conveniently located 30 minutes south of Sedona, 50 minutes south of Flagstaff, and just over an hour north of Phoenix, Out of Africa Wildlife Park is an easy and pleasant drive through the I-17 corridor. Set at an elevation of 3,400 feet, the weather and landscape are similar to the Serengeti in Africa. While the park does not experience snow, it does enjoy slightly cooler temperatures during the summer months.

Out of Africa Wildlife Park began as a research project that founders Dean & Prayeri Harrison initiated in their home over 30 years ago. Today, Out of Africa is a successful wildlife park visited by thousands of visitors annually from all around the world. Many people often ask how, "How is all of this possible?"

Dean Harrison wrote a book about their experiences. Published in 1995, "Return to Eden" outlines lessons learned and their application at the park today.

FEATURES

Out Africa Wildlife Park features several shows throughout the day: Creature Feature, Tiger Splash, Giant Snake Show, Feed-a-Tiger, Wonders of Wildlife, Predator Feed, and the African Bush Safari tour into the Serengeti preserve for an interactive tour with the African hoof stock, such as giraffes, zebras, ostriches, watusi, gemsbok, and more. All of this is covered with price of general admission.

Tiger Splash™ performances are the park's most popular activity. Tiger Splash™ is everyday at 1:15 p.m. in the Tiger Splash arena and features unrehearsed performances of tigers interacting in a predatory/prey relationship of romping and splashing with caretakers in a large pool.

Creature Feature is featured every day at 11:30 a.m. at Critter Court unless otherwise specified. Touch, photograph, and learn about the small mammals, reptiles, or exotic birds.

The African Bush Safari is a 30 to 40 minute adventure in the spacious Serengeti preserve. Surrounded by some of the world's most exotic, free roaming animals, you'll ride in a safari vehicle, complete with expert guide and narration. This tour allows riders to get closer than they ever thought possible to giraffes, zebras, sable antelope, gemsbok, and so many more of the wild-by-nature inhabitants. Some may even get to steal a kiss from a giraffe while feeding with the treats that are provided.

The Wildlife Preserve covers over 100 acres in all. There are several ways to engage the splendor of the Wildlife Preserve, which actually encompasses all aspects of the park, from the free-roaming Serengeti and Masai Mara, to the entertainment arena and courts, even to the spacious habitats located throughout the park. Each element was designed to give you a chance to see these beautiful creatures and their natural behavior up-close. For your benefit, many of these habitats have unobstructed photo platforms that provide you the opportunity to photograph the animals in the purest sense; fence free.

The Predator Feed is featured every Wednesday, Friday, and Sunday at 3:00 p.m. Visitors follow the animal caretakers on this half-hour walking tour as they throw 800 pounds of raw food to anxiously awaiting carnivores. Trams are available on a first come, first served basis for those less inclined to walk. There are plenty of opportunities to take amazing pictures while bears chow, hyenas laugh, and lions roar.

The Giant Snake Show is featured daily at 2:15 p.m. and features an anaconda, python, or a boa constrictor. Visitors may have a hands-on experience if they choose. Enjoy caretaker's enthusiasm for teaching, sharing, and showcasing these intriguing giants, and gain a new respect for the rich diversity of living reptiles removed from the Hollywood hype of fear and anxiety. Brimming with photo opportunities, the Giant Snake Show is one unforgettable experience you'll definitely want to get wrapped up in

Wonders of Wildlife, featured every Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday at 3:00 p.m., is a rare opportunity to see a variety of unique and exotic animals from a very different perspective. Sustaining the Sanctuary

Out Africa Wildlife Park is dedicated to wildlife and the wild places that sustain all of us. As many of those wild places around the globe are diminishing, we have heeded the call of developing and maintaining this 104-acre, animal sanctuary that offers a haven to those who have no home. Perpetuating this real living and breathing planet we all inhabit with all of its wildlife beauty is something we feel is worth devoting our lives to, and it starts in our own back yard. Building and maintaining natural, spacious habitats allow our animal residents to not just survive, but thrive. And as an added benefit, we get to observe their natural behavior, up-close.

As many of the wild places of the planet are disappearing and wildlife reserves and zoos become the last sanctuary for much of the world's wildlife, Out of Africa Wildlife Park offers a place for animals that have no other. The Wildlife Park is working to tip back the scales for animals that have lost so much and have no voice. Through educating the public, Out of Africa Wildlife Park helps to ensure the sustained existence of wildlife species throughout the world.

Discovering an exotic creature in person can be a life-changing event, no longer some cold, and virtual image on a computer screen, or a page in a text book. When a tiger chuffs at you as to say hello or a giraffe comes within inches of you to snatch a carrot stick from you, suddenly you begin to experience a connection with the animal in a very personal and meaningful way. There is a transcendence that occurs, one of being uplifted. You, like so many, may be quickly overcome by their purity and sense of purpose and even feel oneness with them. Many people bond with a particular animal, as does the animal with them, and that shared experience is repeated on subsequent visits never to be forgotten.
